

Land Management Plan Revision

FINAL

The information in this map is a recreation places inventory. It identifies Forest Service administered recreation sites and areas with recurring recreation use. Those areas important to tourism are highlighted. Information was gathered from Forest Service personnel, other government agencies such as the Alaska Department of Fish and Game, long-time residents familiar with areas of recreation use, and providers of tourism services.

This map of recreation use represents only one point in time, the latest update was done in July of 1995. Recreation use areas are constantly changing. In addition, as more information is gained from field inventories and knowledgeable sources, periodic updates will occur. Recreation Places may be added, deleted, or changed in shape and size.

This inventory does not display land allocations or imply management direction. The information is intended to increase awareness of locations where recreation use is occurring, and to assist in developing an understanding of the recreation analysis in the Environmental Impact Statement.
